OUR LIFESTYLE

Our life is centered on family, love, and creating meaningful memories. We enjoy cooking together and hosting meals for friends, trying new recipes, and sharing stories around the table. Traveling is another passion of ours—we love exploring new cities, local traditions, and natural landscapes, and we look forward to creating adventures with our children that broaden their horizons.

Our weekends are often spent outdoors, whether that's going on family walks, exploring local farmers' markets, or discovering new places in Austin. At home, we enjoy cozy movie nights, reading books with Nolan, or playing games as a family. We also value quiet moments, like Saturday mornings with pancakes or evenings spent reflecting on the day.

We strive to live a balanced life that prioritizes family time while embracing curiosity and joy in everyday experiences. More than anything, our lifestyle reflects our commitment to raising children in an environment where they feel safe, supported, and endlessly loved.

OUR HOME & NEIGHBORHOOD

We live in Austin, Texas, in a safe, family-friendly neighborhood where children play outside, neighbors greet one another warmly, and community events bring everyone together. Our home is full of warmth, laughter, and love, with plenty of space to play, learn, and grow. We especially love spending time in our backyard, where we host barbecues, garden, and watch Nolan run around with our dog, Benito. Nearby, there are beautiful parks, playgrounds, and a library we visit often, along with excellent schools we are excited for our children to attend one day. We are grateful to live in such a welcoming community, and we know it will provide a strong foundation of safety, joy, and belonging for our growing family.

ADOPTION IN OUR LIFE

Adoption has been one of the greatest blessings in our lives through Nolan. His presence fills our home with joy, laughter, and purpose, and we are forever grateful to his birth mother for her incredible love and selflessness. Her decision has given us the gift of parenthood, and not a day goes by that we don't honor her courage.

Through adoption, we have learned the depth of gratitude, patience, and unconditional love. We look forward to expanding our family through this same journey, continuing to celebrate adoption not just as a process but as a bond that ties families together in profound ways. We are honored to be on this path again, with open hearts and a deep respect for you and your story.

OUR FAMILY & FRIENDS

We are blessed with an incredibly loving and supportive circle of family and friends who are just as excited as we are to welcome another child. Our families live both near and far, but distance has never stopped us from staying closely connected. Grandparents, aunts, uncles, and cousins are constant figures in Nolan's life, and they are eager to open their arms and hearts to another little one. Our gatherings are always filled with food, music, and laughter, whether it's celebrating holidays, birthdays, or simply enjoying a weekend together.

Our friends in Austin have become like an extended family. They are a diverse group who bring fun, creativity, and support to our lives. Many of them have young children, which means there is always someone ready for a playdate, park outing, or family meal. We love that our child will grow up in a community where they are surrounded by people who not only care about us but are also committed to helping nurture and love the children in our lives. This wide circle of love, encouragement, and joy ensures that any child who joins our family will be embraced fully and unconditionally.

OUR LETTER TO YOU

To a Loving Mother,

We are forever grateful that you are taking the time to read our story and get to know us. Adoption has already touched our lives in the most beautiful way through our son, Nolan, and we cannot imagine our lives without him. Becoming parents has been the most humbling, joyful, and transformative experience, and we feel deeply honored that you are even considering us to be part of your journey. We know this decision takes immense courage and love, and we hold deep respect and compassion for you as you think about what is best for your baby.

We dream of giving Nolan a sibling and envision a home filled with laughter, warmth, and unconditional love. We hope to nurture another child with the same joy, security, and opportunities that Nolan experiences every day. Our family values kindness, curiosity, and celebration of differences. We will make sure your child grows up knowing not only how deeply loved they are but also how profoundly cherished they are by you.

If you choose us, we promise to honor your gift by giving your child a life rich in experiences, surrounded by family and friends who will love them fiercely. We look forward to building a home full of traditions, adventures, and everyday moments that create lasting memories. Thank you for considering us as part of your child's future.

WITH LOVE,
SAM & ROBERTO
